Did you know...

Tea tree essential oil has a triple antiseptic effect: it acts against bacteria, fungi, and viruses. It is also healing, anti-inflammatory, deodorant, expectorant, and balsamic. Its antiseptic, fungicidal, and anti-acne properties have been recognised by the Australian Health Department.

We discovered it... In 1988, thanks to our Australian supplier. Nowadays, the widespread use of this oil has led to poorer quality oil being sold on the market, so be careful which tea tree essential oil you buy. Make sure it has a high content of 4-Terpineol, the active anti-bacterial and anti-fungicidal component to which viruses are very sensitive. It also provides our healthy cells with greater resistance to viral entry.

Organic Shea Butter

Our organic shea butter comes from the nuts of the African shea tree. It is totally natural and can be used by everybody, from babies to elderly people, on the face and body, hands, elbows, feet, knees, lips, and intimate areas.

The exclusive characteristic of shea, and the secret which makes it so unique a product, is its high content of “unsaponifiables” (from 12 to 18%), which are essential to improving the tonicity of the skin, maintaining its elasticity, and regenerating it.

Despite its oily appearance, shea butter is non-comedogenic (it does not provoke spots) and is therefore ideal for the care of all skin types, from the most sensitive to the oiliest.

Smoother softer skin: add a tablespoon of shea butter to your bathwater to envelop your whole body in a fine, invisible layer making it smoother, more hydrated and very soft.

Pregnancy: prevents the appearance and formation of stretch marks. During lactation, it prevents the formation of cracks on the breast and protects the baby from redness caused by nappies rubbing against the skin. Can be applied as many times as needed.

Hair mask: Massage shea butter into the hair and wrap in a towel for 20 minutes, then wash. Ideal to nourish dry hair.

Our organic shea butter also prevents the formation of sores, repairs wounds, and activates skin healing after herpes.

Shaving cream for sensitive skin: apply a thin layer before washing with soap and the shave will be easier and without irritation.

Without a doubt...
The best 100% natural cosmetic

100% Pure essential oils

Extraction process

For many years we have collaborated with producers from all over the world to obtain our high quality essential oils. All of them extract their essences from plants cultivated with natural farming and many of them from their organic fields..

Chemotype of the essential oil

The specie, the principle active compounds, extraction method, and the part of the plant distilled are indicated. An essential oil has very complex chemical components whose properties are quite diverse. The chemotype is a chemical, biological, and botanical classification that identifies the most prevalent molecule in the essential oil thereby defining it therapeutically in a clearer and safer way. All of our essential oils have their chemotype and offer a maximum guarantee, quality, and safety..

Aromatherapy

Essential oils act at two levels. Their active compounds have an effect on the skin, being able to soothe, tone, etc. Concurrently, as aromatic substances, they also act directly on the limbic system, on the mind and moods. In this guide you can find the main properties of each essential oil, both at a topical level -for the skin- as well as its core aromatherapeutic benefits.
